Dear Virginia PTA member:

Over the last several months, Enough Is Enough (EIE), a recognized leader in our nation's effort to protect children online, has been working tirelessly on the ground-breaking educational video series, Internet Safety 101. The Virginia PTA is a proud partner of the Internet Safety 101: Empowering Parents Program which is targeted to launch in Virginia with the back-to school season; nationwide launch is scheduled for 2009. This video will deliver a dynamic message about Internet threats and safety solutions. Key components include: Pornography 101, Predators 101, The Evolving Web and Internet Safety Rules N' Tools.

On Saturday, June 7, EIE President Donna Rice Hughes will conduct a comprehensive teaching presentation in front of a live studio audience in McLean, VA for inclusion in the Internet Safety 101 video. You will hear from experts in law enforcement, the Internet industry, psychologists as well as teens and parents impacted by the hidden dangers of the internet. This will be your opportunity to gain valuable tools to protect your children but also is an important opportunity to be a very visible, major part of this innovative program. Your questions asked and answered at the June 7th event will assist parents and caretakers all across Virginia to protect their children when the program is launched in September. This presentation is not appropriate for children 15 years and younger.

YOUR PARTICIPATION IS NEEDED

WHEN: Saturday, June 7, 2008 from 12:30 pm-4:30 pm

WHERE: McLean Bible Church, Smith Center Auditorium, 8925 Leesburg Pike, McLean

Register TODAY for this FREE event. Be a member of our live studio audience and help spread the word about a critical event that no parent, educator, or guardian can afford to miss!
